Claims 1-31 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in the reply filed on November 25, 2008.

Applicant's election with traverse of Group IV, claims 32-37 in the reply filed on November 25, 2008 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that claims 1-37 are drawn to a product and process adapted for the manufacture of such product, they have sufficient unity of invention to warrant their examination together in this application. This is not found persuasive because claims 1-31 are not limited to the methods of producing the compounds of claims 32-37. Further, the compounds of claims 32-37 could be made by a materially different process, such as by chemical modification of known erythromycin compounds.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

The examiner has required restriction between product and process claims. Where applicant elects claims directed to the product, and the product claims are subsequently found allowable, withdrawn process claims that depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of the allowable product claim will be considered for rejoinder. All claims directed to a nonelected process invention must require all the limitations of an allowable product claim for that process invention to be rejoined.

In the event of rejoinder, the requirement for restriction between the product claims and the rejoined process claims will be withdrawn, and the rejoined process claims will be fully examined for patentability in accordance with 37 CFR 1.104. Thus, to be allowable, the rejoined claims must meet all criteria for patentability including the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 101, 102, 103 and 112. Until all claims to the elected product are found allowable, an otherwise proper restriction requirement between product claims and process claims may be maintained. Withdrawn process claims that are not commensurate in scope with an allowable product claim will not be rejoined. See MPEP § 821.04(b). Additionally, in order to retain the right to rejoinder in accordance with the above policy, applicant is advised that the process claims should be amended during prosecution to require the limitations of the product claims. Failure to do so may result in a loss of the right to rejoinder. Further, note that the prohibition against double patenting rejections of 35 U.S.C. 121 does not apply where the restriction requirement is withdrawn by the examiner before the patent issues. See MPEP § 804.01.

Claims 32 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for O-cladinose, O-myrarose,)-rhamnose and methylted derivatives thereof, O-digitoxose, O-oliose or O-oleandrose, does not reasonably provide enablement for glycosyl moiety. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention commensurate in scope with these claims.

A conclusion of lack of enablement means that, based on the evidence regarding each of the factors below, the specification, at the time the application was filed, would not have taught one skilled in the art how to make and/or use the full scope of the claimed invention without undue experimentation.

(A) The breadth of the claims.

The term “glycosyl” encompasses any monosaccharide, disaccharide, oligosaccharide or polysaccharide.

(B) The level of predictability in the art.

It is well known in the pharmaceutical art that even small changes in the structural formula of a compound can to lead to the loss of activity of said compound or other desirable properties.

(C) The amount of direction provided by the inventor.

The specification fails to present a specific definition of the term “glycosyl”.

(D) The existence of working examples.

The specific working examples presented are not commensurate with the full scope of the claimed invention.

(E) The quantity of experimentation needed to make or use the invention based on the content of the disclosure.

Because there is no way to predict a priori which specific glycosyl groups will result in a compound having the desired activity, it would take an enormous amount of trial and error to test various glycosyl groups encompassed by the present claim.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

> A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –
> (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 32-37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Or et al (U.S. Patent No. 6,147, 197).

Or et al disclose the claimed compounds wherein X is –CO, R1, R4, R6, R9, R10 and R12 are CH3, R2 and R3 are together keto, R5 is glycosyl group having a hydroxy protecting group, R7 is OH, R8 is H, R11 is OH, R13 is OH, R14 is ethyl (see compound of Formula (II), columns 2-8).
